Just the ticket as bus crime goes down

by Hilary Bryan

GREENWICH has the second biggest reduction in crime on the buses according to the latest figures from Transport for London.

The figures for 2009/10 show that crime on buses in the capital has fallen by eight per cent - the lowest level in six years.

Despite an increase in passenger journeys over the last five years, the rate of crime has fallen across the capital in several areas. Vandalism is down by 37 per cent in the last year and violence against the person has dropped by ten per cent while robberies went down by eight per cent.

In Greenwich bus-related crime is down by 30 per cent compared to the year 2008/9.

For 2009/10 incidents of criminal damage fell from 173 to 122, cases of violence against the person dropped from 285 to 195 and the number of robberies fell from 151 to 62.

Overall, there are almost 2,000 police officers and police community support officers dedicated to the bus network in London.

Locally, the fall is being attributed to an increase in officers working from a police transport hub at Woolwich Arsenal.

In my opinionValley focus on the facts

THE World Cup is finally over and now we can concentrate on the real football - and that means The Valley. Charlton's 2009/10 season may have ended in heartbreak but the players, club and fans should be warned: enter self-pity mode at your peril. The club is now entering its fourth season out of the Premiership and any nostalgic dwelling will only harm Charlton's promotion hopes. What if we'd got someone else instead of Dowie? What if Pardew had kept us in the Prem? What if Andy Reid hadn't been sold? Maybe Charlton would still be mixing it with the elite, maybe they'd be competitive in the Championship. It's time to forget the trials of the last few years and focus on the facts. Charlton are now a League One team with a decent chance of promotion next season. The real issue fans should be concentrating on is how the Charlton team will look on the first day of the new campaign. Finding the balance between reducing costs, keeping vital players and strengthening with free transfers will be the big test and ultimately define Phil Parkinson's tenure as Charlton boss. The well-documented financial turmoil will undoubtedly act as an inhibitor on progress - but after two seasons of financial belt tightening and the unavoidable player sale to come, one would hope enough is being done to reverse the club's monthly losses incurred by the cost of the playing staff. Charlton have already cut their losses on players like Chris Dickson, Yassin Moutaoukil and Leon McKenzie. Now with stars like Lloyd Sam captain Nicky Bailey and Frazier Richardson departing, the financial wolves should be kept from the Valley door at least for the time being. The silver lining is a huge pool of free agents ready to be snapped up by an astute manager. As long as Parkinson gets the recruitment right, with early signings of Johnnie Jackson, Gary Docherty and Alan McCormack offering encouragement, there is no reason why Charlton can't be gunning for promotion next season.

'A sense of community ownership'

BUILDING a sense of community ownership towards the Olympic Park is vital to its success after the 2012 Games, according to young people from the five host boroughs. The Legacy Youth Panel of around 30 young people aged between 13 and 21 was set up by the Olympic Park Legacy Company to help shape the plans to develop and animate the Park over the next 25 years. Since last November, the Legacy Company has reached 3,500 pupils through themed school assemblies and classroom sessions. Company chief executive Andrew Altman said: "It's inspiring to see the enthusiasm of the Youth Panel in helping to shape the future of their area. They are the generation that will benefit the most from the Olympic Park's legacy. "They have come up with many innovative ideas and are right that we local people need to feel a sense of ownership." Panel member Rachael Oyedele, aged 15, from Eltham Hill secondary school, said: "It has proved such a huge step for me. The panel has been a life-changing opportunity and like the Olympic and Paralympic Games comes once in a life time. When family and friends hear about the panel and the work we have done shaping the plans for the park post-Games, they look at me with respect. It has boosted my confidence and self-esteem to speak out in public. It has provided opportunities for me in the future and I'm proud to be representing Greenwich in this process."

WHAT TO CHARGE: two Boxgrove pupils go into a huddle to agree on some prices during Money Week

Cash points!

Boxgrove pupils spend a week of making money talk

by Peter Cordwell

PUPILS have spent a very profitable week finding out all about money.

Money Week at Boxgrove primary school, Abbey Wood, improved their understanding of finance by participating in a range of enterprising activities.

They included a money trail, making and playing money games, shopping activities and lots more.

Highlight of the week was a 'Junior Apprentice' style challenge in which pupils used an allocated budget to plan, make and sell a snack to younger children.

Pupils had to decide how much to spend and how much to charge for their product - the aim being to make the most profit.

Many of the young business people carried out market research before planning what to produce. Others created advertising posters and jingles.

Among the snacks were chocolate crisps, peppermint creams, ice lollies and Magic Cones - a cake in a cone, iced and decorated to taste like an ice cream.

The competition was taken very seriously by staff and children alike - and most customers left the sale satisfied.

Luka, aged six, said: "I have learned that when you want to buy something you should look around first to make sure you end up with what you really want."

The week was organised by the school's community cohesion manager Mary Campbell, who told GT: "Children are becoming more aware of the financial pressures that families are facing at the moment."

"Money Week was an opportunity for us to highlight these issues in a fun and relevant way, helping pupils to develop the skills they will need to manage money successfully. Our children have loved the week and learned a great deal!"

Children at Boxgrove clearly agree. Naomi, aged 10, said: "Money Week has helped us to learn how important it is to save and spend wisely."

Harry, aged nine, said that the games and activities he took part in helped him to understand more about money. "I really enjoyed this week. I hope we do it again!" he added.

Anne's praise

Learning champions get Royal approval

by Dick Townsend-Smith

HER Royal Highness Princess Anne paid tribute to Greenwich for its work in encouraging people to learn new skills when she visited the Volunteer Centre in Trafalgar Road last Wednesday morning.

The event was organised by NIACE, the National Institute of Adult Continuing Education, which fronts the Community Learning Champions' Support Programme such as the project operating in Greenwich.

The champions are all volunteers who work within their communities promoting the value of learning to local people.

The Princess Royal is the patron for NIACE, and was making a private visit to hear from local community learning champions and meet project organisers. She complimented the borough on its work in making the scheme a success.

"This is a day of recognition for all your hard work," she said. "Community Learning Champions are a really good idea because education broadens people's experience and builds their confidence. In your work as champions you set a standard in a way that we hope will encourage others. Developing new skills and having the confidence to use them are really important when times are hard. "Learning champions open the door to encouraging people to gain new skills. Greenwich has been incredibly successful in encouraging a really wide range of people to develop new skills and make use of them. I would like to thank you all for your enthusiastic support of the champions scheme."

Princess Anne presented NIACE badges to some of the Greenwich champions, including four who spoke about their experiences to the audience. They were Paul Roberts, Nadine Hagen, Angela Wilden and Dorothy Ghanekar.

Michelle Martin, chief executive of the Volunteer Centre, Greenwich, explained how the project had operated locally, saying: "Eighty-eight volunteer champions have been recruited since we began, and some of our learners have gone on to be champions themselves."

Other guests included Mayor of Greenwich Barbara Barwick and deputy council leader Peter Brooks. He said: "The informal and flexible way in which the champions are able to support and encourage people into learning is a great strength of the scheme, and helps to ensure that local people - including those from some of our most deprived communities - have access to learning that can help to change their lives."

"The champions have made a real difference to this borough, and the role of such volunteers will become even more necessary in the future as the cuts we are required to make in our budgets of up to 40 per cent are certain to affect the way in which we fund the voluntary sector."

Bus crime on the decrease

The extra officers are jointly funded by Transport for London and the Met. They are among 440 extra officers recruited last year to work from 32 transport hubs in areas identified as needing extra coverage and work alongside other transport police teams. Chief Supt. Joe Royle said: "We are working with Transport for London and our policing partners to drive down crime and the fear of crime. This significant drop in bus related crime is thanks to this amazing partnership, and the intelligence-led policing capability of the Safer Transport Command and its Safer Transport Teams. Together we shall continue to further reduce bus related crime and instill even more confidence in the public who use the transport network."

Big screen a big football hit

IF anyone needs reminding about the benefits of living in a diverse community - they only needed to go and watch one of the football matches on the big screen in Woolwich. People from all different backgrounds have watched match after match - cheering each other's teams on. There has been no trouble at all. Just lots of people coming together through the medium of sport. That's the way it should be. And just imagine what it will be like when we get the Olympics in our own back yard. Bring it on!

Please help with this filth

I HAD an extension done by the disabilities team for my disabled child last year. I have been infested with mice and today I have realised that sandwiches, yoghurts and crisps, etc, have been thrown down between my extension. My garden is getting full of foxes' poo and dogs keeps getting through next door's fence, which is broken. I have spoken to the contact centre and they won't do anything. How am I supposed to get rid of this rubbish? My little girl and my son are disabled with special needs. My boy has a serious heart condition. He cannot play outside and relies on playing in the garden. The gap in the garden is too small for me to get through. It's absolute filth. I couldn't believe my eyes.

S.G., Eltham

● THE council is sorry to hear that you have been experiencing these problems. We understand council staff have visited your home and have arranged to clear out the rubbish and seal off the gap between the properties. We should clarify that Contact Centre staff deal with complaints from residents seriously and professionally, but cannot authorise repairs to garden fences. However, the council has looked into your concerns around safety, and will arrange for repairs to be carried out.

My hospital concerns

I AM greatly concerned at the way patients are being let down at Q.E. Hospital, Woolwich, as I was when my husband was admitted via ambulance after collapsing, screaming in pain. I was told to take him home with two tablets every four hours by a junior doctor. He was then readmitted to another hospital. He actually had a completely broken disc in his back. A doctor that was victimised by his management for calling for better health for all of the hospital's patients. I want to ask anyone to come forward with a bad experience so I can plead with the hospital and MPs to try and make things change. Far too many cases of poor healthcare at the hospital go unnoticed because people don't know they have the right to complain or cases like ours were never answered.

I have formed a Facebook group for Dr Ramon Niekraash, the brave urologist and already over 200 people have joined in support of him. He won his case but still ended up paying in excess of £150 for his court expenses. People can contact me at londonlink@hotmail.com

Helen Ellis, Shooters Hill

● NO response to Ms Ellis's letter has been forthcoming from the hospital. Ed

A QUESTION OF CLASS...

I WONDER if anyone else noticed an interesting little aspect near the end of the Spain-Germany World Cup semi-final in South Africa. With only seconds remaining, Spain - leading 1-0 - were awarded two corners in quick succession. If that had been a league game in England, two players would have protected the ball near the corner flag to waste time - with full approval from TV commentators like Alan Parry, who invariably ingratiate themselves to the macho bosses in the English game. But no, both times Spain got the ball back into play and, in the eyes of people like Parry, risk conceding an equaliser. What you fail to notice, Alan, is something foreign to you and your kind...class.

Best thing is to forgive

NICOLETTE Christian had some interesting points to make on how criminals are being made to pay back their debt to society by undertaking clean-up works in the borough. Hopefully, it will help them understand what being a good citizen is all about and they'll see the errors of their ways. It also has to be a two-way thing in that the rest of us have to be ready to accept that people can change, instead of believing that a leopard can never change its spots. George Harrison put it well in a Travelling Wilburys song: "Best thing you can do is forgive."

MARSHALL PINSENT: 'On the last Tuesday in June Aperture Woolwich Photographic Society held an evening shoot in Greenwich. For the most part the light was disappointing until the last few minutes of the sunset when suddenly we were blessed with a glorious sky. We all came away with variations on this shot, so we couldn't complain!'

Talk about the good things too

CHRISTOPHER Plummer is within his rights to point out the need for improving the indoor market in Woolwich, but let's not drag our town down! There have been huge improvements of late - the DLR, the Royal Arsenal development, new shops like Costa and Nandos moving in. All of this is a sign of how our town is improving. And there's more to come with Tesco moving into Woolwich soon and hopefully a Crossrail station to follow. So let's keep pointing out how places can be improved - but let's not lose sight of the huge strides that have been taken already. It's easy to keep knocking things, harder to praise.

FIVE-MINUTE RUN: the cable car scheme planned for the Greenwich Peninsula

Cable car plan for Greenwich

Five-minute run would carry 2,500 passengers an hour

by Peter Cordwell

PLANS for the UK's first urban cable car provide a much-needed new river crossing between the Greenwich Peninsula and the Royal Docks, offering spectacular views along the Thames.

The proposals being developed by Transport for London (TfL) would provide a privately-funded, fully accessible cable car for pedestrians and cyclists which would cut travel times between The O2 and ExCeL - two major Olympic and Paralympic venues.

The cable car would cross the river at a height of over 50 metres, with spectacular views of the Olympic Park.

It would take around five minutes to travel between The O2 and ExCeL.

The cable car - which would be subject to planning permission by Greenwich Council - could provide a crossing every 30 seconds, carrying up to 2,500 passengers per hour in each direction, equivalent to 50 buses per hour.

Council leader Chris Roberts told GT: "In principle, Greenwich Council supports any measures that increase access across the river, but we are conscious that this is not a substitute for the Silvertown and Gallions Reach Crossings. We have yet to receive the planning application for the scheme but we will ensure that Greenwich residents are consulted on the proposals."

The scheme is being proposed in response to the Mayor of London's desire to increase the number of river crossings east of Tower Bridge.

It is one of a number of initiatives being considered and could open ahead of the 2012 Games, subject to funding and planning permission being secured.

The cable car would be a first for the capital, and the only urban system in the UK, seeking to replicate the success of cable cars in many cities across the world such as Lisbon and Barcelona.

LEGAL experts have joined together to provide a 'one-call-does it-all' service for people needing advice.

Members of GLAS - Greenwich Legal Advice Service - have launched a new helpline which means Greenwich residents can get free, independent and confidential legal advice at the cost of a phonecall.

The initiative was launched before a 40-strong audience of representatives from the voluntary sector including the mayor of Greenwich Barbara Barwick last month.

The GLAS number on 0300 303 8080 is staffed by legal advisers who are available Monday to Friday and on Saturday mornings.

The helpline saves callers having to phone five different numbers and gives access to advisers from Greenwich Citizens Advice Bureau, Greenwich Housing Rights, Greenwich and Plumstead Law Centres and Meridian Money Advice, which are all part funded by Greenwich Council.

Matt Ventrella, who co-ordinates GLAS, said: "We want to make it as easy as possible for people to get help. Instead of five different numbers, you just have to call one number for advice. Whoever you speak to will assess what help you need and whether or not we can help. We'll help you decide the best way to get that help and we might not be able to solve all problems on the spot, but you'll have a better idea of what can be done. And if we don't know the answer, we'll know someone who does!"

He added: "Between us, we responded to over

17,000 requests for advice last year, and took on over 1,900 cases, helping our clients to enforce their rights. Last year, we helped Greenwich residents to be better-off by £3.2million."

Tony was disabled and could hardly stand up but his claim for Disability Living Allowance was turned down. He was put in contact with Plumstead Law Centre which heled him appeal against the decision. The law centre helped Tony to claim £151.30 a week and he was awarded over £8,000 in back payments.

He said: "I have been turned down twice for DLA in the past and without the Law Centre's help I would have been fobbed off again. I have been able to buy things for my home, and the extra money helps me to pay for transport to get around."

● For free legal advice phone the GLAS helpline on 0300 303 8080. You can also get information on local advice services on Greenwich Council's website at www.greenwich.gov.uk

POSTER PROMOTION: the new helpline number

Doing it for Demelza

A determined mum and her friends want to say a big 'thank you' to everyone who supported their first community fun day for Demelza Hospice for Children.

Jenny Hassan's seven-year-old Adam, a pupil at Cherry Orchard Primary School in Charlton, suffers from a rare form of a progressive muscle-wasting disease. He needs regular care at the hospice which has recently opened up a new haven in Wensley

Close, Eltham. Jenny and other mums hosted a fund-raising afternoon of fun last month at nearby Meridian Sports Club, off Cemetery Lane. She said: "Many thanks to everyone who helped and everyone who came along to support us."

"We managed to raise a couple of hundred pounds for the hospice and I followed it up by helping out at the Demelza stall at the Horn Fair in Charlton."

WILD ABOUT HARRY: Morrisons shoppers Miranda Lawrence and Ann Jefferson are entertained by 89-year-old Harry Taylor in the store's café

And now for Simon Cowell!

Store star Harry, 89, knows he's got the talent

by Rod Kitson

HE'S 89 years old, but singing sensation Harry Taylor has his sights set on Simon Cowell and the judges on Britain's Got Talent.

The pensioner has been wowing customers at a supermarket in Thamesmead with renditions of 'As Time Goes By' and 'What A Wonderful World', and the plucky singer says pop's Mr Nasty wouldn't faze him in the slightest.

"I've got no fear," he told GT. "Years ago I got nervous, but not now - if someone put me up for the show, I'd just go."

Harry has been singing all of his long life, starting in a duo with his father working at the Old Kent Road Astoria.

He loves making people happy, bringing cheer to shoppers at Morrisons with versions of Frank Sinatra's

'My Way' and 'Delilah' by Tom Jones. The tenor said: "I got to know the girls who work on the counters in the café and they would say, 'Are you going to sing today Harry?'"

"It gradually grew until the manager found out, and he asked me to have a charity bucket to collect money. When he came back later to count the money there was £300 pounds in it. People were putting five and ten-pound notes in and telling me how wonderful it was that I was singing to raise money for charity."

He's had quite an impact at the store. Customer Miranda Lawrence enthused: "He's fantastic, and has a very strong voice for his age." Friend Ann Jefferson agreed: "He's an amazing personality."

Café worker Wendy Johnson added: "He cheers everyone up. When he sings the whole shop goes quiet and everyone claps."

And it's not the only singing he does. Harry said: "I've been doing it for three years or more now. I go to Morrisons almost every day at 11.30 in the morning, and once a week I go to Brook House care home and sing to every person in there."

"They are all bedridden in there, and they love it, they do."

He puts his own rude health down to abstinence from alcohol (despite working for a brewery most of his life), and a good diet.

"My doctor says, 'I don't know what you do Harry, but keep doing it and you'll live to be a hundred!'" the spritely pensioner added - "I'm bloody marvellous they reckon - and I'm still here!"

"I don't drink or smoke, and I eat plenty of broccoli and beetroot which is good for the heart. I've had a great life. I'm a lucky man and I'm still singing."

Indeed, he's had quite a life. As well as the music he played football for England boys, before going on to Millwall and Crystal Palace before World War Two broke out. Through the conflict he was a bouncing bomb "aimer" in a Lancaster Bomber.

It was only a concussion he sustained while doing his duty for king and country that scuppered a professional football career, leaving him with impaired vision and wearing glasses.

Harry moved to Thamesmead in 1982, and watched his new house being built. He lost his wife eight years ago, but says he loves the community spirit and can count on his neighbours if he's ever in trouble.

"All my things are here and it's my home - I get by," he said, before breaking into song: "I'll get by, As long as I've got yo-u."

Peggy's presence living in the past

HISTORY has repeated itself for one Greenwich family who get a blast from the past!

Teenager Peggy Contento has won a museum volunteering award following in her step-dad's footsteps. Eighteen-year-old Peggy won the Special Youth Award at the London Volunteers in Museums Awards for her work at the Royal Artillery's Firepower! museum. Last year, her step-dad, Jason Mortimer, won a London Volunteers in Museums award for his work at the Woolwich museum. The London Volunteers in Museums Awards are organised by Renaissance London, a partnership which helps to develop museums in the capital. Despite studying for her A-levels, Peggy developed the museum's database of citations for medals, which record stories from brave soldiers. The museum aims to publish this database when it is complete. The A level history student said: "When my step-dad won the award, I started thinking about volunteering. I wanted to work at Firepower because I've always been interested in the history of war. I'm doing history A-level and volunteering here actually helps with that because I learn things teachers could never teach me." She added: "Looking at the different stories on the medal database has been my favourite bit of work - I find it astonishing some people got so many medals. I like seeing documents and handling things that have been around since World War One - I find it so interesting that I'm actually looking at them." Peggy was nominated for her capable, professional and dedicated approach. Professor Jack Lohman, Chair of the Renaissance London Board and Director of the Museum of London, said: "Volunteers are part of the bedrock of our museums. We cannot thank them enough for the work they do. The London Volunteers in Museums Awards go some way to showing how much we value their hard work and fresh perspectives." # School report

Major cuts affect building programme

THERE was mixed news for Greenwich schools last week following the government's plans to make major cuts to the national Building Schools for the Future (BSF) programme.

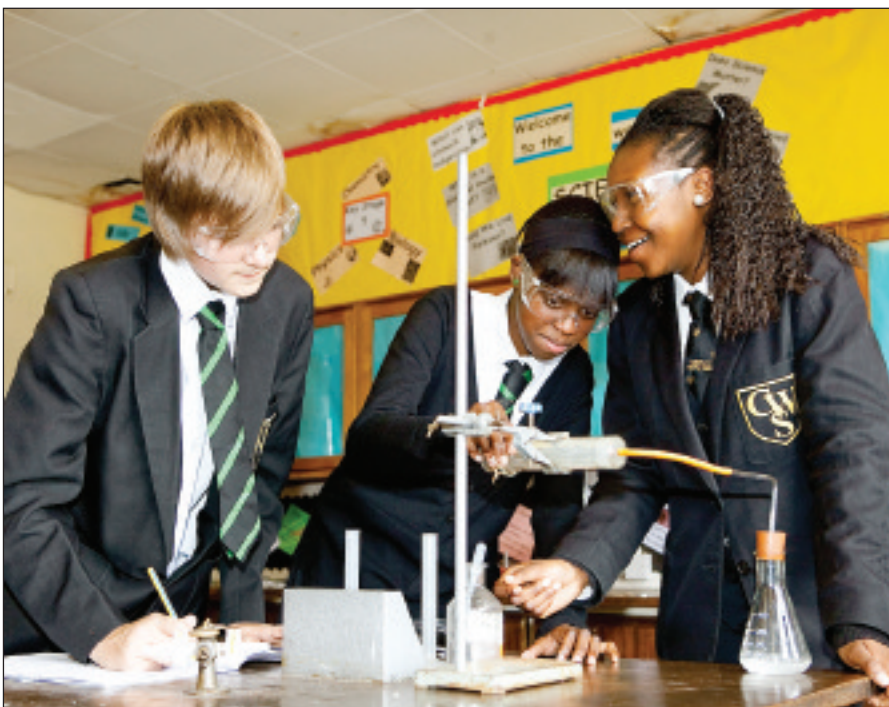

More than 700 schools across the country will no longer have their school rebuilt or refurbished. The list of cancelled projects includes four schools in the borough - Blackheath Bluecoat, Eltham Green, Kidbrooke and Shooters Hill post-16 campus.

Cllr Jackie Smith, Greenwich Council's cabinet member for children and young people, told GT: "We are obviously very disappointed that some schemes will not progress and that a number of our schools will now be left without the necessary funding that they needed to enhance their facilities.

"We are also concerned that the questions around the accuracy of the published information has caused additional uncertainty and confusion."

The ongoing construction of new schools at Crown Woods and Thomas Tallis are not affected, and the existing plans for The John Roan, Eltham Hill and Plumstead Manor schools are also protected.

Building works at Crown

JEWEL OF THE CROWN: ongoing construction at Crown Woods school is protected

Woods and Thomas Tallis are progressing well and the new schools are expected to open at the end of April, 2011, and October, 2011.

The John Roan School is being refurbished and rebuilt on its existing sites. The building on Maze Hill will have a major refurbishment, while the Westcombe Park Road building will be demolished and rebuilt. Work is expected to start in late autumn, 2011.

Plumstead Manor and Eltham Hill refurbishment works are also underway and major building works begin in October, 2010, and January, 2011.

Action stations

Police set up Saturday cop shops

by Hilary Bryan

BOBBIES will be operating from mobile police stations in the heart of the borough's three town centres this month.

A mobile station will be located in Greenwich, Woolwich and Eltham town centres on Saturdays from noon to 4pm to help increase police presence on the streets.

The initiative, led by Safer Neighbourhoods officers, aims to bring the police closer to the public while giving the public a chance to discuss local policing issues.

It's a chance for local residents to meet officers, report crime, receive crime prevention advice and discuss their concerns with a senior police officer.

Visitors to the station can also report lost and found property, abandoned cars and get advice on criminal law.

Officers will also provide information on how they are working with partner organisations to reduce crime and anti social behaviour. Visitors can also learn more about the Met Volunteers programme which is looking to recruit more people to volunteer their skills and free time to help make Greenwich safer.

The mobile station will be manned by the borough's senior police officers including Superintendent Chris Halford and Borough Commander Richard Wood as well as members of the Safer Neighbourhoods Teams.

The mobile police station calls in at the following town centres on the following dates:

• Greenwich - Cutty Sark Gardens, Saturday, July 17.

Staffing: Blackheath and Westcombe SNT / Charlton SNT Senior officer: Inspector Cliff Eager

• Eltham - Passey Place, Saturday, July 24

Staffing: Eltham North SNT / Coldharbour & New Eltham SNT Senior officer: Inspector Nick Crowe

• Woolwich - Greens End, Saturday, July 31

Staffing: Woolwich Common SNT / Thamesmead Moorings SNT

Richard Wood said: "We look forward to meeting as many residents as possible whilst out with the mobile station."

"It's important that we are accessible to the community in a number of ways and this is an ideal opportunity to do this."

"We want to be visible, and want people to approach us and talk to us about their concerns. We are also looking for those who can offer their time and join the Met and get involved by volunteering".

• Greenwich's Safer Neighbourhoods Teams host monthly meetings to discuss policing issues as well as street briefings and drop-in surgeries.

Words worth!

The scheme helping pupils discover joys of reading

by Peter Cordwell

LOVE makes the world go round but it needs to be oiled constantly by words.

And there's no greater gift we can offer children than the ability to read and go on to discover the wonder of books.

Top journalist Majella Anning has been doing that twice a week for the last three years at St Joseph's primary school in Greenwich - and she can't imagine a more rewarding way of "giving something back" to the community.

Majella, a former radio and television correspondent for the Australian Broadcasting Corporation, is attached to Volunteer Reading Help (VRH), a national charity established in 1973 that helps children to develop a love of reading and learning.

She told GT: "Before I came to Greenwich five years ago, I had been working in international journalism in Brussels for 15 years. I wanted to connect to my local community and I saw a VRH advert. 'I contacted them and I was very impressed. They are very professional and very organised - and I like that.'

Majella had an interview, did three half-day training sessions and was offered a school very near to where she lives. "All you have to do really is go to the school, sit down with a child - one to one - and read. I have to say it's one of the most rewarding activities I have ever undertaken. "Each year the school has decided which three children I should take. The wonderful thing is to watch their progress throughout the year. You see their confidence grow and at the end of the year they look up at you and say: 'I can do it!'

"You can see you are helping a child build their future towards a better job, enjoy reading and understand the world. I never want to stop doing this."

Majella, who gives up 90 minutes twice week, has learned a lot herself over the last three years. She said: "You find that every child is an individual and responds to different things. Some respond to rhyme, some to funny stories, some to magical stories, and that's how they discover what reading can offer.

"The most exciting time comes when a child asks you: 'Can I read this book?' That's when you know your job is done and that they no longer think that books are difficult.

"I would also encourage parents and children to enroll at their local library this summer. It's free, you can take out lots of books and they have lots of exciting activities and competitions as well."

Valerie Williams, from VRH's London south east branch, told GT: "We have 23 volunteers working in 13 Greenwich schools at present and we're very pleased with how it is going, but we would welcome more people to cover more schools and more children."

Tunnel closures this weekend

BLACKWALL Tunnel will be closed to southbound traffic from Friday to Monday - July 16-19 - as part of the ongoing safety upgrade of the 113-year-old tunnel.

This will allow Transport for London (TfL) contractors to carry out vital improvement works that can't be carried out during the weeknight closure programme. During the last weekend southbound closure in June, many parts of east London experienced severe traffic congestion caused by the volume of traffic using Rotherhithe Tunnel. As a result, Rotherhithe Tunnel will only carry southbound traffic during the weekend closures of the Blackwall Tunnel, using both lanes.

The Woolwich Ferry will also run additional services between 6.10am and 10pm on Saturday and 9am and 9.30pm on Sunday to provide an alternative river crossing during the closures.

On their marks

Blackheath army soldiers on to second place success

A TEAM of TA soldiers from Blackheath were the runners-up in a gruelling weekend tournament designed to test their skills to the limit.

The four Territorial Army soldiers from the London Regiment's Blackheath Platoon joined around 100 troops when they competed for the coveted Ironmongers' Shield on the Ash Ranges near Pirbright in Surrey.

The soldiers scored points for marksmanship and navigation at night, and a seven-mile endurance march

by Dick Townsend-Smith

ending with a snap shoot at 200 metres.

Competition was fierce, with only an eight point difference between first and second, showing that determination, training and experience are an unbeatable combination. Despite their best efforts, the Greenwich Reservists were runners up to the winning team from A (London Scottish) Company.

Lieutenant Chidi Nwaonu, platoon commander of the London Regiment's C

Company Platoon based in Hollyhedge House, Blackheath, led his team on the day. He said: "This was a great competition that really tested the all round infantry skills of each team. Of course we were disappointed not to have come away with the trophy but we are encouraged that it was so close a score and look forward to entering and winning next year."

The London Regiment provides infantry support to the Regular Army and consists of five companies spread geographically across Greater London, including Blackheath. It is a fully operational unit having deployed twice to Iraq in 2004 and served in the front line in Afghanistan in 2007. Sixty London Regiment reservists are currently on operations in Afghanistan, including a team who are training and mentoring the Afghan National Army.

Not sure?...Don't open the door

GREENWICH Council joined a national campaign day to crack down on rogue traders and doorstep con men earlier this month.

The council worked closely with local police to stop around 40 traders across the borough as part of 'Operation Liberal'.

The initiative involved a nationwide day of action but Greenwich Council continued the operation over a four-day period from 28 June 28 to July 1.

Not Sure?...Don't Open The Door' was the message at the heart of the exercise designed to raise public awareness about the doorstep callers.

Around 40 traders were stopped during the operation and it was discovered that two of the traders had knocked on the door of a Greenwich resident stating they had loose roof tiles.

The traders were also given advice on their legal obligations as well as seeing if they were involved in any suspicious activity such as rogue trading work. Checks were also made on whether they were working whilst claiming benefits illegally.

Evidence suggests that distraction burglary is linked to rogue trading who often travel vast distances across the UK to commit offences. This highlights the importance of having a national operation such as 'Operation Liberal'.

Rogue traders often prey on the elderly and vulnerable who fall victim to losing vast sums of money for work that is substandard, unnecessary and overpriced, and the council also issued the following advice to residents:

- Beware of trader's cold-callers especially when say that you need urgent work done on your property
- Be careful when responding to flyers dropped through your letterbox
- Avoid paying cash up-front – if possible try to agree on when payments will be made (e.g. pay 50% when half the work is completed satisfactorily)
- Get three written quotes before choosing a trader

Cllr Maureen O'Mara, Greenwich Council's cabinet member for environment and community safety, said: "We fully support this initiative and want to make sure local residents do not fall victim to any rogue traders or scams. I would urge people to be vigilant and to pass on any crucial information to us which will prevent others from being scammed."

Get to know...

GREENWICH Council and Ravensbourne are inviting Greenwich businesses to learn more about Ravensbourne, what it means for their future of the borough and what it could mean for their business. Find out more by calling 020-8921 6834 or by emailing businessesevents@greenwich.gov.uk. Sessions will be from 6-8pm, the first at Greenwich Digital Enterprise Centre at Mitre Passage, Greenwich Peninsula, on Monday, July 19 - aimed at businesses in the creative and digital sector - and July 22.

THE prestigious morning, high up in a brand new conference room in Mitre Passage on the Peninsula, was built around two solid themes of "welcome" and of "aspiration". Ravensbourne, the digital media and design college, is being welcomed to Greenwich this summer.

It will shortly be moving into its new building next door to The O2 Arena, ready for the start of the autumn term.

Together, Greenwich Council and Ravensbourne worked with young people to create a special "design challenge" for primary schools within the Plumstead "cluster".

With a few "leads" and plenty of encouragement from Ravensbourne tutors, the Year 5 children have created 3D models for their ideal city space - featuring hotels and apartments, shops, businesses and leisure zones. There was a water-wheel, lots of viewing towers, solar panels, wind turbines and subterranean parking too.

As the council told contestants, it was all about getting a fresh, new perspective on urban regeneration - "using a magic wand on something that was like Cinderella before, or using the idea of "transformers".

The competition was judged by Cllr Denise Hyland, the council's cabinet member for regeneration, enterprise and skills, Ravensbourne tutors Layton Reid and James Ward, and Susie Wilson from Lend Lease, one of the organisations in the Greenwich Peninsula Regeneration Partnership.

They each gave marks for creativity, shape and structure; appropriateness to location; layout and links with surrounding environment; visualisation, including use of materials and working to scale, and overall presentation.

Timbercroft primary in Timbercroft Lane were top point-scorers and delegates went away with new holdalls, certificates and THREE different plaques for their school!

But Cllr Hyland told everyone: "You are ALL winners here today - and it's the participation that counts!"

She told GT: "What a superb event this is, bringing together primary schools, further and higher education in the form of Ravensbourne, and business in the form of the Peninsula's Regeneration Partnership."

She added: "It's also good news that Ravensbourne are very keen to expand passed their ideas to adults from both the education and the business...

one of the vibrancy and enthusiasm of these “new kids on the block”...

Sign of times

So... what did the budding urban planners dream up?
Timercroft's community space revolved around 10-year-old Aaron's “outside in” office building with a tree in the foyer to give energy to the rest of the site.
Aaron told us: “Everyone likes winning - but I thought some of the other buildings that other people showed here today were spectacular as well. It was amazing to come to such a great building. It was very exciting and we all felt very important to be there. It was a great experience.”

There was an Olympic-standard sports centre, and a luxurious triangular hotel, complete with silver staircase, called “TriLux”, both from Timercroft; Rockliffe Manor School had a range of sculptured designs, including an art gallery, sports centre and football-shop - not forgetting a ramp for the disabled; Eglinton pupils worked around an office-block ‘Tower of respect’, topped with a beacon light; Greenslade's layout was on a water theme, including a couple of swimming pools, a beach and an aquarium; St Margaret's CE school in St Margaret's Grove included a church with its own community hall; and Plumcroft's plan was totally futuristic, putting buildings on legs and linking them with slides and escalators, and even a climbing wall!

Layton Reid, who is head of the ‘Ideas’ unit - comprising interior design, environment, architecture - at Ravensbourne, told GT: “Kids are really interested in ‘mixing’ uses close together. They want shops, along with little libraries and cafes. They think of things in a holistic way.
“I think there is clearly a lot of creative talent in this borough! Maybe it's the water here - but theirs is something here that makes these kids want to engage with the new look.
“Greenwich is changing - and that change has certainly galvanised the whole community. Everyone wants to move forward, the children want to do things differently”, and that's what Ravensbourne is all about too.”

Students aged over 16 at Charlton Special School in Charlton Park Road are also a part of this design challenge. Each pupil has already had three short workshops around the ideas, and they're planning to stage their own presentation in the autumn.
● RAVENSBORNE is due to move into its uniquely-tiled new college at 6 Penrose Way, SE10 0EW on the Peninsula by the end of September, and the first students will be in on October 25.

Greenwich Council's Choice Based Lettings Scheme

Edition 193

How the lettings policy works

Housing applicants are placed within 'Bands' according to the Council's policy for letting homes. Your band information is on the letter that the Council sent you when you registered, or when your circumstances changed.

Property adverts say which band can apply and any other criteria. When all the bids are received, the property is then offered to:

For properties advertised for band A and band B - the applicant who has had this priority status for the longest time.

For properties advertised for band C applicants - the applicant who has been registered on the Council's list for the longest time.

Band

- A is for applicants in unsatisfactory housing, including people moving due to demolition and those underoccupying their homes.
- B is for applicants the council must prioritise according to the law, particularly homeless people, and others with an urgent need to move for medical or welfare reasons.
- C is for all applicants on the housing register, including those that are in priority bands A and B.

How do I apply?

1 Get on the list

First, you've got to be on the housing waiting list to join the scheme. If you're not, get an application form by phoning the Access and Allocations Section on 020 8921 2941. Or pick up a form from any neighbourhood office.

2 Find your applicant number

It will be on the letter you've already had from the Council about the new scheme. You'll need that number and the reference number of the property you're after, which will be on the advert.

3 Pick out your ideal property

by looking in Greenwich Time or regularly checking the website:

www.greenwich.gov.uk/homes

Click on your preference on the website. If you don't have a computer, you can always use one for free in either your neighbourhood housing office, library or UK Online centre.

4 Apply in one of two ways

- Phone the 24-hour hotline 020 8921 4340. It's an automatic push-button system and calls will be charged at the normal local rate, or
- Via the Council's website

www.greenwich.gov.uk/homes

Getting to the art of the matter...

A group of artists who are great friends pick up their brushes for a show in Blackheath that is all heart and soul

SCENE got right to the art of the matter when we visited a group of creatives who have an exhibition coming up. Based in Shooters Hill, the alliterative artists are known as the Plumstead Painters and Potters. PPP for short. De-facto leader Colin Fifield told us: "The PPP has been going for about five years, putting on an annual show each year. There are nine of us exhibiting and there is a lot of variety – watercolours, pottery, glass work and contemporary pieces." There is no theme as such, to the works which are on show at Blackheath Village Library until July 24, only that "they are all really good!" deadpanned Colin. Abstract collagist and sometime group organiser, Claire Rowlands added: "We are each showing ten of our pieces, so there will be about 90 in total. It's a lovely space, upstairs at the library."

And they are a close-knit bunch, that meet to get creative and socialise. "I've known Colin for 30 years," Claire said – "he's my mentor, and the reluctant leader – the patriarch of the PPP." Bubbly colourist, Rachel Bailey-Hogg said: "Colin's taught me everything I know" - before surrealist pal Sandy quipped "and she's ignored all of it!"

The Blackheath Village Library, which will be home to the works until is on Blackheath Grove, and the group are all based close by. Colin added: "We're all local, I think the furthest person out comes from Maidstone." There is a great range of different styles on show, and an immense amount of talent within the group.

Whether it's Colin's landscapes, Emily's colourful abstractions or Ray's precise illustrative style, the works have bundles of personality and the warmth of the group of painters comes through in their work.

Rod Kitson

*On now until July 24 at Blackheath Village Library, 3-4 Blackheath Grove, SE3 0DD
Opening times: Tuesdays & Thursdays 10am-8pm; Friday 10am-1pm; Saturday 10am-5pm
Entrance is free*

Mega-fest films

Movie madness!

WHAT better way to spend the balmy summer evenings than watching an open air film screening with the kids?

Animated modern classic, Up, is on the Big Screen in Woolwich this Friday, July 16 at 6 pm.

It's an uplifting adventure in more ways than one as unlikely hero of the piece - grouchy pensioner Carl Fredrickson, finds his second wind with a young pal and an affable hound.

Like all great animations, Up works on many levels: the kids love the crazy animals and kooky storyline, while the adults will marvel at the hidden jokes and cap nods to morality. The screening is free and, of course, it's a U certificate.

And on Friday July 30, Bollywood blockbuster Devdas is showing at 6pm at the screen on General Gordon Square in Woolwich town center. Set in the early 1900s, the award-winning Indian flick follows a young man named Devdas on his way home to India having spent the past ten years in London. Starring Shah Rukh Khan, Aishwarya Rai and Madhuri Dixit Again it's free, the certificate PG.

The screenings are part of the Greenwich Film Festival, and there is also a bonafide drive in showing the coming-of-age 70s film, Grease. It's John Travolta is at his narcissistic best, and is on show at Avery Hill and includes a rock 'n' roll band and dance off which runs from 6pm this Saturday, July 17, with the film on from 10pm. It costs £10 per car advance, £20 on the night, but don't worry if you've got no wheels - walkers get in free. Tix from Eltham Centre and Woolwich Heritage Centre.

Aaaaand... There is a showing of an award winning independent film, followed by a Q&A session with the two lead actors at Greenwich Picturehouse on Sunday July 18.

Skeletons won a best British feature film at the Edinburgh Festival and is on at 1.30pm at the cinema on Greenwich High Road. Entrance is free. The film festival is part of The Greenwich Festivals - a season of local events that is on until November. Also part of TGFs are the Summer Sessions - four days of music at the Romanesque Old Naval College from July 21-25. And guess what? We've only gone and bagged a pair of tickets to give away for the final day, Sunday headlined by Athlete. See below.

WIN WIN WIN! SUMMER SESSIONS TICKETS

Scene has a pair of tickets to the Summer Sessions on July 25 to give away. Just answer this question: Which band headlines on Sunday? Comp ends July 20. Email your name, address and contact number to: competitions@greenwich.gov.uk or send a postcard marked 'Summer Sesh Comp' to Woolwich Town Hall, Wellington Street, SE18 6PW

So many whys...

New guitar attack from Lynard

DURING their 1970s heyday, Lynyrd Skynyrd emerged as the one of the greatest practitioners of Southern American rock. Their triple-guitar attack and country-tinged songs carved a permanent spot on the playlists of classic rock radio, and since its first release in 1973 their epic hit 'Freebird' has received more airplay than anything this side of 'Stairway to Heaven.'

The tragic deaths of visionary lead guitarist Steven Gaines and lead vocalist Ronnie Van Zandt in a 1977 plane crash cut down the band at its peak, but after parting ways for several years, the surviving members re-formed the group, with Van Zandt's little brother Johnny at the helm.

This is a band well aware of the responsibility that comes with putting the name 'Lynyrd Skynyrd' on anything, be it an album or a concert. "We feel like we have to keep the standards high," says Gary Rossington (guitar). And those high standards are very much in evidence when the band plays to packed-out venues across the world.

'Live From Freedom Hall' is a dazzling CD/DVD package featuring a passionate explosive show recorded at Freedom Hall, Louisville, Kentucky in June 2007. The performance includes every Skynyrd classic from 'Gimme Three Steps' and 'Tuesday's Gone' to the ultimate rock sign-off with 'Sweet Home Alabama' and 'Freebird'. And so, having recently completed a sell-out UK tour in March, including an emotional return to the Hammersmith Apollo, Skynyrd stands "still unbroken" in 2010.

"People may say, 'they need the money,' well I don't think any of us need the money," Van Zandt says. "It's just that we love the music, it's bigger than the money, it's not even about that any more. We have to make a living, sure, but it's about the legacy of Lynyrd Skynyrd, and what it stands for, what the fans are all about. There's nothing like getting out there playing a great show with Skynyrd and seeing people love this music."

Electric power with L

Mercedes gives a glimpse into the future with an electric car performance and aesthetics to match its green credentials.

WHILE visiting the Frankfurt motor show last year I saw the new SLS AMG

Mercedes super car, and during the press conference there was talk of an all-electric version of the gullwing mega car. But surly an all green electric version would result in low performance and shocking range on a single charge or does it? You see, the AMG division of Mercedes is not known for its slow cars. So a brand new electric drive train for the SLS, happy named "E-Cell", means you can purchase one of the coolest super cars out there and not feel like you are personally responsible for flooding Holland every time you take it out for a spin. But how good can it really be - could you see yourself walking past the award winning V8 petrol car, and asking to test drive "an electric SLS"? I was sure that this was an exercise to keep the Green party happy and not a real alternative to petrol. However after reading the stats for this car I realised that a lot of the numbers matched up with the standard model. Take the 0-60mph time: most electric cars cannot even get to 60mph but this thing gets there in four seconds which is only 0.2 of a second slower than the V8. This is done by placing two motors on each axle making the power distribution more even and more direct. Along with is mental acceleration the power output of the E-Cell SLS is a few kW less than the petrol version, add to this some weight shedding and the end result is like for like performance, something I thought was still a good five years away.

In order to get the most out of the 324 lithium-ion polymer batteries, AMG has included a few simple energy saving touches. Things like full LED headlamps - which use a fraction of the power a standard headlamp does. The car company has also added a recharging brake system to charge the batteries as you stop. And with the extra lightweight carbon fibre bakes and trim, stopping uses a lot less power too. AMG have not been too forthcoming when it

Festival chic for summer

GLASTONBURY has put the summer festival season into full swing, and with the likes of Global Gathering, V Festival and Reading to follow in July and August, we have the season's hottest festival fashion tips to make sure you're a festival Goddess this summer...

Maximum style, minimum effort...

Comfortable and chic, from day until night, it doesn't matter if a maxi dress gets creased, as it just adds to the whole boho look that oozes style this season. Last year's maxi was all about the print, but this year block colours are more on trend. New Look has a great range of maxi dresses, and we also love this jersey dress, (far right), which is £18, from Dorothy Perkins at OUTFIT. Wear maxis with flip flops or sandals, chunky bangles and a pendant for a fabulous look.

Dare to reveal...

Go for one pair of comfortable sandals. Think gladiators or flip flops in a colour that will go with any look - tan or gold are perfect for day or night too. Try Clarks and New Look for a great range of sandals, and these gold sandals (on model, right) are perfect and only £25 from Dorothy Perkins at OUTFIT.

It's all about the accessories...

A pair of jeans, tee and wellies needn't look dull - just update the look with some fashionable accessories. Think trilby hats and Alexander McQueen inspired scarves for you and your guy, while pendants, flower hair accessories and arms full of chunky bangles gives that added feminine look. Try these (image 2) from Next, £18.

And don't forget...

● A dark or oversized pair of sunglasses. These will disguise the fact that you got not sleep last night - TopShop at OUTFIT, Next and New Look stock great sunnies.

● Dry shampoo, available from £1.49 and Baby Wipes, available from £0.89, Boots. Fashion retailers, New Look, Dorothy Perkins at OUTFIT, Clarks, River Island, Next and H&M are all available at Greenwich Shopping Park, Bugsby's Way, Charlton

It's an easy target

WILD Target is a short but highly amusing and somewhat eccentric British comedy written by Lucinda Coxon, directed by Jonathan Lynn and based on a 1993 French movie of the same name. The premise is straightforward.

Middle aged bachelor, Victor Maynard (Bill Nighy) has inherited the family business and leads the solitary life of the professional assassin. Like his father before him, he is cold, calculating and ruthless, leaving nothing to chance and isolating himself in an artificial world of order, routine and cleanliness. It's a world without feeling or emotion, lest they distract his focus and attention. But while trailing Rose (Emily Blunt), his next intended victim, something deep inside him, long forgotten and long ignored, begins to stir.

Rose is a small time con artist whose latest scheme – the sale of a forged painting – has swept her way out of her depth and straight into the path of Victor. Touched by her beauty, sensuality and spontaneity, she is everything he is not and, much to his confusion, he is unable to complete his assignment instead becoming her protector. Together, Rose and Victor – who pick up joint-smoking, drifter, Tony (Rupert Grint) en route – flee London to avoid the rather sinister attentions of a replacement assassination team ultimately finding themselves in Maynard's peaceful, clean but utterly soulless, country residence.

The characters make the most of a simple storyline, their interaction

ON THE MOVE: Nighy (r), Grint (centre) and Emily Blunt

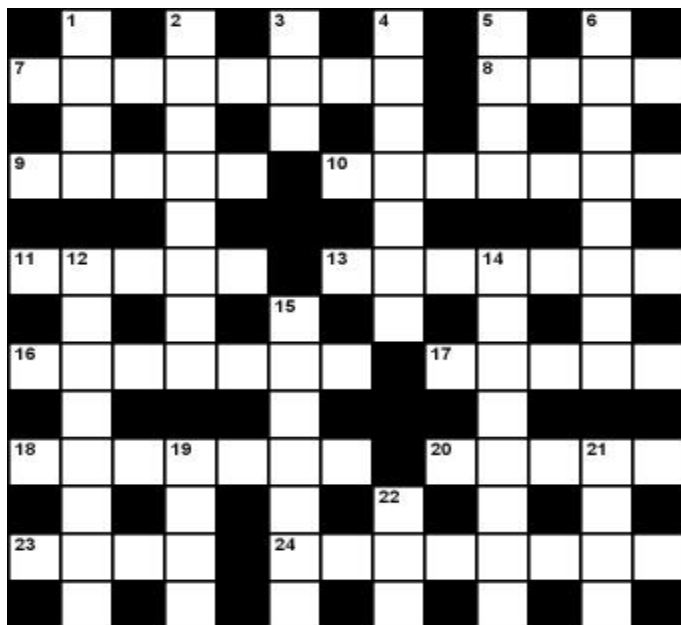

good – particularly given their divergent characters. Nighy is excellent – tight, taut and sexually neutral, hermetically sealed emotionally like the plastic dust covers systematically covering his furniture. Blunt is equally good, confident, sensual but at times touching and vulnerable, emotionally needy in her own way. Grint is their foil, incompetent and accident-prone but unintentionally helpful and even keen to become Maynard's apprentice. The actor is competent enough, but he now needs to consider future roles carefully if he is to avoid becoming typecast as the stereotypical, bumbling buffoon. The line between comedy and tragedy is fine one, and here it is crossed by each of our trio on their involuntary journeys of self-awareness. Maynard's realisation of the futility and emptiness of his existence – never more acute than when listening to teach-yourself-French CDs in bed late at night; Rose hiding her insecurities behind short term relationships and her kleptomaniac tendencies, and Grint himself, the little lost lamb in search of its parents. Director Jonathan Lynn – perhaps best known for Nuns on the Run (1990), cleverly underplays this element – it is, after all, a comedy – but the occasional tragic moments nevertheless provide a powerful backdrop to the comedy.

Verdict
Amusing, touching and very funny in parts. Definitely worth seeing. 8/10

Greenwich in top ten at London Youth Games

catch in the event. The Woolwich Poly schoolboy from Thamesmead Town Angling Club, teamed up with two lads from the Woolwich Dockyard club, helped Greenwich into the bronze medal position.

As ever, the borough's judo teams - under the experienced eye of Metro Judo Club's head coach Mick Murphy - excelled themselves, the girls finishing second and the boys third - in a 33-strong squad - to pile on the points for Greenwich with seven golds, five silvers and eight bronze medals. Mick told GT: "We competed with three other clubs in the borough - Thamesmead, Harris and Suburashi - and fielded the biggest team we have ever had. It was a fantastic weekend."

Commonwealth Games-bound Zoe Smith took time out of her hectic schedule to return to her roots and take gold in the Balfour Beatty sponsored Games.

Zoe told GT: "I've always loved representing Greenwich at the London Youth Games, right since my first time as a 10-year-old gymnast. I didn't win any medals then but it's great to be able to do my bit now."

"I was born in Greenwich and have always lived in the borough. I've been really fortunate to benefit from the support of the Greenwich Starting Blocks charity and through the pages of GT I'd like to thank the people of Greenwich who raise so much for them."

"For all the time I can I will definitely do the London Youth Games and even when I am too old for it I would still try and get involved and get people into the Greenwich team."

Woolwich swimmer Luke Brewster excelled in the pool, winning gold in the 50m freestyle. "It was a hard race to be involved in and a very tough one to go out and win, so that makes me even more pleased to come through and win gold," said Luke.

"I will definitely be back next year. I can't wait for it to come around again already. Winning just makes you want to get back in the pool and race."

Brewster and Smith were competing at an action-packed weekend which saw all 33 London boroughs go head-to-head across 17 different sports at the Crystal Palace National Sports Centre.

Bromley, victors in six sporting categories, were overall winners with Croydon second and Havering third.

Cllr John Fahy, Greenwich Council's cabinet member for culture and the Olympics, said: "It's always a joy to attend this great event for the young people of London and especially enjoyable when our team does so well. A top ten finish is highly commendable and let's hope we can make even more progress up to 2012."

Johnnie Jackson is welcomed back to the Valley

JOHNNIE Jackson has returned to The Valley after Charlton agreed to sign the left-footer from Notts County on a free transfer. The 27-year-old midfielder, who can also play at left-back, spent a month on loan in SE7 last season, but his stay came to a premature end due to an injury. However, he has now become Phil Parkinson's third signing of the summer - having been released by the Meadow Lane club, and Jackson was expected to feature in the club's first pre-season friendly against AFC Wimbledon on Saturday. Parkinson said: "I'm delighted to complete the signing of Johnnie. Our supporters will have seen him briefly last season when he played well for us on loan, and his versatility - his ability to play left-back, left midfield or centre midfield - will be very important to us going forward." Jackson was allowed to leave Meadow Lane due to personal reasons after making 30 appearances for County last term. He also featured four times for Charlton during his loan earlier this year, featuring in three wins and one defeat, but tore his hamstring in the game with Stockport County and was forced to end his temporary stay at The Valley. Magpies manager Craig

Short said: "When a player is away from his wife and young child it can be very hard and sometimes you have to evaluate what is important in life. I completely understand and support Johnnie's decision. Family comes first."

Greenwich keeps its position in the top ten at the London Youth Games

by Peter Cordwell

GREENWICH'S position among the top ten sporting boroughs in the capital was confirmed at the London Youth Games when the team repeated its performance of last year to finish a highly creditable 10th out of 33.

Solid consistency across the board was Greenwich's byword throughout two days of competition at Crystal Palace as the distinctive 'Get Active' T-shirts fought all the way.

Diversity was also the order of the competition as 11-year-old Alfie Homewood, competing for the first time, caught a massive 91lb CARP, the second biggest
